Creating Custom Containers

Creating your own custom container can be fun - kind of like picking out an outfit or color swatches for a room. You can pair different colors, textures, and sizes to create a beautiful container. We have plenty of foliage and blooming plants available to create endless combinations.

First, consider where your container will be placed and the amount of light that area will have during the day. Any area that is exposed to direct sun for 6 or more hours is considered Full Sun. Partial Sun or Partial Shade areas are those that receive 4 to 6 hours of direct sun a day. Full Shade is any area that receives less than 4 hours of direct sun a day. Once you determine what plants will be happy in your decided location, it's time to design!

Pick your container and think about what colors you'd like to include. Do you want dramatic height, lush blooms, or maybe some delicate trailing plants? Keep the Spiller, Thriller, Filler theme in mind when choosing plants:

Spiller - Plants that spill or trail out of the pot, planted at the edge of your container.

Thriller - Plants that are placed in the center or back of a combination container to add drama and height to the combination.

Filler - Plants that fill in the middle area of a container connecting the spillers and thrillers and making the container look full.

Your container will take 2-3 weeks to grow up to it's full and lush potential, so don't overcrowd plants now. Use 3 or 4 plants in 10 or 12-inch planters, 4 to 6 plants in a 14 to 16-inch planter and Six to 8 plants in an 16 to 20-inch planter and so on. Also consider the plant's habits when choosing the number of plants - you may need to adjust your layout depending on the vigor and final size of the plant. This can often be found on the plant tag, and ask an Ashcombe associate for more recommendations. Happy planting!
